Slippery Field Slows Up Aerial
Game—High Wind Interferes

FROSH GOAL UNCROSSED

Brewer and Kingston Play Heady
Defensive Game to Help Hold
Visitors to Single
First Down.

In a game played at Trinity field last Saturday the Trinity Freshman team won its second game of the season by scoring an 8 to 0 victory over Suffield School. The running and passing attack of both teams was decidedly hindered by the slippery playing surface and wet ball. The game, after the first quarter, when the Freshmen scored all their points, resolved into a kicking duel between Sill and Washburne, with the man whose team was defending the north goal having a decided advantage due to the strong north wind which swept across the field.

The defensive work of the Freshmen was of the same high calibre that has characterized their playing in every game this season; as they held the visitors to one first down, and prevented them from advancing the ball within the 25-yard line. Craig and Fritzson played a head-up game at end, recovering several fumbles and getting down under Sill's punts so effectively that the Suffield safety man was unable to run them back for more than very short gains.

Bill Brewer's keen diagnosing of the Suffield plays aided him in backing up the line heavily, while the Trinity backfield effectively covered most of their opponents' passes, their most used means of advancing the ball. The line from tackle to tackle played well with the work of Kings-ton and Thompson featuring.

Tony Ward was the most dependable ground-gainer for the Blue and Gold yearlings, being especially effective on sweeping end runs on which he outraced the Suffield ends, skirting their flanks for several substantial gains. The Freshmen's passing attack was ineffectual due to the difficulty of handling the slippery ball. The backfield men were slow in reaching their line of scrimmage due to the unsteady footing, giving the opponents' secondary defense time to block up the holes made by the Trinity linesmen.

Washburne, Suffield's fullback, besides passing and kicking, did the majority of ball carrying, as well as playing a heady defensive game. Brewster at end, and Carney, at tackle, were the outstanding men on the Suffield line.

The scoring was confined to the first quarter. Thompson opened the game by kicking off to Washburne on the 23-yard line, who returned the ball 20 yards. Three attempts at the line netted but six yards, so Washburne punted outside on Trinity's 47-yard line. Tony Ward slipped through tackle for six yards on a cut back, and Bill Brewer went through the

BASKETBALL PROGRAM ALTERED BY OOSTING

Tournament Plans Discussed at Meeting of Committee on Fraternity Sports

At the first meeting of the inter-fraternity sports committee in the physical education office last Thursday evening, a new plan for deciding the winner of Peter Ogilby's basketball cup was brought up. As all the members of the committee were not present, nothing was definitely decided, but important policies were discussed.

Under the new plan, in which the basketball tournament will be run off similarly to last year's squash racquets tournament, each fraternity will play only four games at the most instead of ten, as was necessary last year under the round-robin system. Each fraternity, the Neutral Body, and the faculty will be listed in a bracket, the winners of the first contest going out to a final on one side and the losers going out to a final on the other side. The winner on the losers' side of the bracket will then play the loser of the final on the winners' side, the winner of this contest to be declared second and the loser, third. The games under the new system will be longer than under the old and will give each contestant a better chance to score. One reason for this change is that last year when the round-robin system was in effect, the basketball games were dragged out all the winter and even into the spring. Now with the advent of three new inter-fraternity sports—squash racquets, tennis, and track—and one new college sport, swimming—it was felt it would be better not to spend so much time on basketball.

The physical education department plans to open the gymnasium one night a week during the basketball tournament, so that if any fraternity wishes, it may challenge another to a game. In this way good practice

REV. HOOPER DETAILS LAMBETH CONFERENCE

Conference Held Every 10 Years to Discuss All Problems of Human Relations

As a guest of the college, Reverend William T. Hooper, the rector of Saint John's Church, West Hartford, delivered a short address on his experiences last summer at the Lambeth Conference, in England. Reverend Hooper was one of the few guests who accompanied the Right Reverend James DeWolf Perry, presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church, as visitors to the Conference.

In describing the conference, Mr. Hooper stated that he was greatly impressed by the number of the different nationalities represented. There were bishops from all parts of the known world, including New Zealand, Falkland Islands, darkest Africa, and the hinterland of China. Mr. Hooper described briefly some of the persons whom he met, and then went on to praise the hospitality with which the American delegation was received.

Concerning the technical system of the Conference, everything was managed with the greatest possible ease for the delegates, there being no serious interruptions in the order of activity. The delegates first gathered together for the formal opening assembly, and then were divided into groups or committees which met separately for a period of about six weeks or more to discuss certain re-

MISS ELLEN LOVE.

JITNEY PLAYERS HERE AGAIN ON OCTOBER 30

"The Duenna", Romantic Comedy to be Presented Thursday at 7.45, in Alumni Hall

JESTERS ACT AS HOSTS

Ellen Love Plays Head in Famous
Sheridan Masterpiece—Group
Remembered for Work
Here Last Year.

Under the auspices of The Jesters, the Jitney Players of Madison, Connecticut, will present "The Duenna" by Richard Brinsley Sheridan, on Thursday evening, October 30, at 7.45 p. m., in Alumni Hall. This marks the first appearance of the Jitney Players at Trinity, since they presented "The Murder in the Red Barn", last fall. Miss Ellen Love who then appeared in the part of Anne Marten, plays the leading role as Donna Luisa.

The Jitney Players, an organization of socially prominent actors with professional training, need no introduction to their Trinity audience. Bushnell Cheney, a relative of the famous Horace Bushnell, immortalized in Hartford by the Memorial Hall now bearing his name, and Alice Keating Cheney, his wife, have firmly established themselves as dramatists of high calibre. Although Mr. Cheney died last spring, his work is being ably carried on. Each year this talented group travels from one town to another, presenting plays from their celebrated jitneys, and each year, increasing their fame and their audiences. This year the troupe traveled the Atlantic Seaboard, going from Bar Harbor, in northern Maine to Durham, North Carolina.

"The Duenna" is a gay romantic comedy by Richard Brinsley Sheridan with incidental music by Thomas Linley. This play was first enacted at Convent Garden Theatre, London, November 21, 1775. The concise plot moves swiftly. The characters are well drawn, and in the dialogue the wit of Mr. Sheridan is in full flower. "The Duenna" abounds in pictorial charm enhanced by attractive costumes and rich settings. Mr. Linley, who is the writer of the music, was the father-in-law of Mr. Sheridan.

SOCCER ELEVEN WILL PLAY AT KINGSWOOD

Team Confident, Though Strong Competition is Expected from West Hartford

Staging its first road game of the season the soccer team will meet the Kingswood School team, of West Hartford, on Wednesday, October 29. After the 7 to 1 victory over East Hartford High School, Coach Fred Weirk feels confident that the Blue and Gold should show up well, considering the fact that several of the regulars are playing fast ball.

During the last week practices were held on the Trinity field regardless of weather, and after two lively scrimmages on Monday and Wednesday, the team had another taste of playing on a wet and slippery field. It will be remembered that the game with East Hartford High two weeks ago was played in the rain, and because of the team's 6 to 1 victory over this newly organized outfit, there is a feeling of optimism as to the outcome of the Kingswood game.

Liddell, who scored five of the six points two weeks ago, will again be playing in his regular position as center forward, while Andrus, who only played during the last half of the previous game, will be in at center halfback for the entire game on Wednesday. The line was considerably slowed up while playing against East Hartford, due to the rain, and it is expected that the speed of the offensive unit will pick up if the game is played on a dry field.

Trinity played two games with Kingswood last year. The game on the Kingswood field was fought to a scoreless tie. The second game, played on the Trinity field, resulted in a 4 to 0 victory for the Blue and Gold team.

NINE JUNIORS CHOSEN FOR PROM COMMITTEE

Chairman Boeger Finally Selects Associates—Alumni Hall is Again Class Choice

In formulating plans for a successful Prom, William A. Boeger, '32, of Elmhurst, New York, the newly-elected chairman of the Junior Prom Committee, has announced the choice of members who will assist him on the committee. Although the committee has met once already to draw preliminary plans, nothing definite can be stated as to the nature of the coming event. The probable date of the Prom will be January 31, shortly after mid-year examinations, and Alumni Hall will be used as usual.

The members of the committee, which includes representatives from all the fraternities on campus, and the Neutral Body are: William A. Boeger, chairman, Psi Upsilon; Herbert Norman, of New Haven, Delta Phi; Raymond K. Adams, of Deep River, Conn., Sigma Nu; Hugh S. Campbell, of Hartford, Alpha Chi Rho; Chester Ullman, of Perth Amboy, N. J., Psi Upsilon; James C. Warwick, Jr., of Beechhurst, L. I., Delta Kappa Epsilon; G. Keith Funston of Sioux Falls, South Dakota, Alpha Delta Phi; John E. Burke, of Troy, N. Y., St. Anthony Hall; Michael Zazzaro, of Hartford, Alpha Tau Kappa; and William Kibitz, of New York City, representing the Neutral Body.

'VARSITY PREPARING FOR WESLEYAN GAME

Coaches Working for Defense
Against Red and Black
Aerial Attack

FAST GAME EXPECTED

Trinity Offensive to Be Bolstered
by Newly Developed Running Attack.

Both the Trinity and Wesleyan football squads have settled down in their final preparation for their annual game to be held at Trinity field, Saturday. This is the thirty-third meeting of these rivals in a series which dates back to 1885, in which Trinity won 11 and lost 21.

"Ring" Thomson, '28, the freshman line coach, scouted both Wesleyan and Amherst in their game last Saturday, in which the Wesleyan eleven surprised the followers of New England collegiate football, by holding the strong Lord Jeff team to a 19 to 19 tie. The undefeated Trinity Freshman team have been instructed of the Wesleyan formations by Coach Thomson and they will use them in their scrimmages with the 'varsity this week.

The 'varsity reserves were given a chance to show their worth in the Haverford game, and received much valuable experience, as the first string backfield and most of the line were only used a part of the time.

Trinity's chief problem will be to stop Wesleyan's biggest offensive, threat, Larry Schlums, star sophomore back, who has scored touchdowns against every Black and Red opponent this season with the exception of Columbia. Another problem which confronts the Blue and Gold coaching staff is the perfection of a defense for the Wesleyan aerial attack, which undoubtedly will be featured by Coach Oberlander, who was a mighty passer his senior year at Dartmouth when he was chosen fullback on the All-American team.

The Trinity running attack which has been ragged in all the games this season, will have to be smoothed out in order to balance the offense, which has been featured by passes, Trinity's most successful way of advancing the ball from scrimmage.

Phippen, the Blue and Gold quarterback whose passing and kicking makes Trinity's supporters hopeful for a victory over their old rivals, will be in the best of condition, as the injuries he received in the Worcester Tech game have completely mended. The remainder of the backfield will be undecided until the starting lineup is announced Friday, with Disco, Ray Bialick, Breck Armstrong, Tom Wadlow, and Britton all possibilities for the halfback positions; while Joe Fontana will probably be at his accustomed position, fullback.

The line has shown steady improvement. It is possible that Captain Durand, who has been kept out of the Connecticut Aggie, and Haverford games by an injured hand may be able to see service Saturday, at his

THE NEW CHAPEL

At last the great dream of the founders is well on its way toward realization in this beautiful new edifice—predicted by the architects to be the finest college chapel in the country, bar none. The campus during the past fifty years has been gradually assuming the quadrangle form which was originally planned with the moving of the site from the Capitol grounds in 1880, and what could be more fitting than that this newest and largest project in that line should take the form of a chapel, since the college, although now non-sectarian, was established in the Church and founded by Churchmen over one hundred and seven years ago?

The chapel of a college should be its most beautiful and outstanding building, and now through the generosity of Mr. Mather, this is going to be the case. The old chapel, although beautiful, was out of sight in the main line of buildings; the new one with its height, and the additional stature of the college hill, will stand out over the Connecticut landscape as Chartres stands up above the French countryside. To appreciate its height in comparison with the other buildings on the campus (according to the plaster model of the ultimate campus now in the library), the reader must imagine towers more than twice the height of Northam, and indescribably more graceful and beautiful. The architects' drawing which appears on the front page can give only a bare idea of the beauty.

According to rumor, the present Junior class will be graduated in the new building, and it is appropriate that the first published pictures and plans should be released on this week-end of festivities for the first class to say farewell to its Alma Mater under its shelter. The president has spoken of Mr. Mather's gift as being "not only an ornament to the college, but also a tool—an opportunity for real use by the students." For this latest instrument for our education and enjoyment, we join with the rest of the college body in offering our very deep gratitude to William Gwinn Mather, 1877.

SENIORES PRIORES

Inasmuch as Trinity College has become a venerable institution, amassing through a history of over a hundred years of vigorous life innumerable traditions, it is quite fitting that a word should be said in reference to the general let-down of their continuance. Traditions are characteristic of institutions hallowed by time and associations. Trinity has been especially happy in selection of the traditions to be continued and has discarded those which seemed to be absurd and meaningless.

One of the most notable traditions is the one which concerns the respect of lower classmen toward the members of the upper class or classes. In keeping with this, the seating arrangement in chapel recognizes the suitability of having the Seniors placed in the highest seat of honor and the lower classmen in tiers below the Seniors. As it were, one ascends in respect as he comes nearer his goal of graduation. In keeping with this seating plan it has always been the custom for the Seniors to precede all other classmen in leaving the chapel, the Freshmen being the last to go out. For some reason or for no reason at all, this tradition seems to have been gradually given up. It is the general opinion of all upper classmen that it of all others should be continued. Not only does the leaving of chapel seem much less like the close of a vaudeville performance, but also avoids the feeling of confusion which should not attend religious services.

In all probability all that is necessary to rectify this laxity in the keeping of one of Trinity's oldest traditions is to bring it to the attention of the student body. It is not possible for one to carry on the tradition, but with the true Trinity spirit of unity and coöperation, again will the chapel custom of seniores priores be carefully carried out and handed down to posterity.

BOOK REVIEW

ANGEL PAVEMENT, by J. B. Priestley; Harper Brothers, Publishers, 494 pages, $3.00.

Dickensque is the only adjective to be applied to this latest effort of Priestley's. Whereas his first success, "The Good Companions", seems to have some semblance of novel construction, with the threads of plot finally appearing in a somewhat unusual, but interesting weave, "Angel Pavement" quite clearly shows that the author no longer favors plot as the cynosure of his mind's eye, but, instead, turns his gaze toward human pathos and humor. The disregarding of plot, the buoyant humor, the vivid characterizations, and the pictures of dingy corners of London make the book appear to be a product of Dickens himself.

Just off the main stream of London's business traffic Angel Pavement sits in quiet—Angel Pavement, a quiet, respectable back-water of shabby little offices. It is revealed to us as a tiny cosmos, harboring every aspect of city life. It forms a miniature reflection of the world, so perfect that it can be individually seen and interpreted by every reader.

"Adventure came to Angel Pavement in the person of Mr. Golspie. He appeared suddenly from the Baltic, swooped down upon the firm of Twigg & Dersingham, and in a twinkling pierced the apathy of the office. He electrified young Dersingham, the personification of heartiness and old school spirit. He brought new life to Smeeth, faithful accountant, haunted by the fear of losing his job. He fascinated the superior typist, Miss Matfield, because she couldn't decide what to think of him. He brought romance in the shape of his daughter to Turgis, the junior clerk. And the fever pitch of excitement for which Mr. Golspie was responsible radiated from Angel Pavement into the widely scattered homes and lives of all these people."

Now, just one example of the book's humor (and incongruity):

Miss Matfield and a gentleman friend were attending a cheap vaudeville performance. They arrived late and found their seats taken. The gentleman friend demanded that the stalls be given up. The parties occupying refused. Dissension followed. Tickets were compared. Miss Matfield's escort was wrong. The audience nearby booed. Miss Matfield brought into play all the blushes she ever knew. She burst into tears. She was ready to faint from humiliation.

Mr. Golspie, that exciting Mr. Golspie, suddenly appeared and handed her a box of chocolates. She was overwhelmed. This was so unusual. Mr. Golspie was such a nice man. She dried her tears, then went and ate the chocolates—in the gallery.

:- Intercollegiate News :-

In a great many exchanges that we had to wade through this week we found several editorials on the relationship between freshmen and fraternities, and between fraternities and colleges. It was interesting to note how much alike these editorials were, and how very similar many of them were to the editorial which appeared in last week's edition of THE TRIPOD. It was quite a task to single out the best of these, but we thought the following excerpt from the Bowdoin "Orient" most interesting. It is, of course, addressed to the freshmen:

"Do not think because you are a fraternity man that you are automatically singled out as better than others of your class who have not, for one reason or another, 'gone' fraternity. If you do get this idea, the shock will be sudden when you wake up. No combination of Greek letters is an 'Open Sesame' for success, and no one combination is better than any other on campus because of its traditions, history, and so on. Each fraternity's success is in direct proportion to the ability and worth of its members. It is therefore up to you new men to take an interest in things both inside your house and out and to work in both fields if you desire your house to be a leading one. In a few short years, you will be the mainstays of your respective houses, and your attitude now may well decide the fate of your chapter then. However, as we have said before, do not let the fraternity go to your head. You are primarily in college, secondarily, at Bowdoin, and after these two, in some other, smaller group. Your first allegiance, therefore, is to college work; your second is to Bowdoin and those things that she cherishes. After these two are satisfied, you are a member of your particular group, and should work for its betterment."

In a much lighter vein, but in the same paper, we found this choice definition of a freshman:

A freshman is a person who wildly waves his hand in the air when a lecturing professor asks, "Have any of you ever read so-and-so before?"

Famous Words:

I'll pay you next week.
You'll double your money in a year.
It'll make 80 miles an hour.
The tires are as good as new.
Twenty miles on a gallon.
You don't look a day over twenty.
Rides like a Packard.
These eggs are strictly fresh.
Every thread is pure wool.
Fair and warmer tomorrow.

—Exchange.

Do you feel poetically inclined this week? If not, perhaps the title of the following poem, which we found in the "Tech News", may at least attract your attention:

The Fool.

Working before His school
Of student Cherubim,
Lord, God, the Artist, made a Fool,
And then gave Life to him.

But ere He turned adrift,
His fool beneath the sun,
"Lord," begged a Cherub, "give a gift
To this ungifted one!"

"Name thou," saith He, "this day
The boon that thou dost call
The greatest gift wherewith I may Endow a fool withal."

"Give him," the Cherub cries,
"If it shall be Thy will,
The greatest thing a fool should prize
The gift of keeping still!"

But the Lord, God, shook His head
And smiled upon His school:
"If he should have that gift," He said,
"He would not be a fool."

—Ted Robinson, Plain Dealer.

The "Beacon" reveals this startling incident to us:

"From the Ohio State 'Lantern', we learn that the Phi Sigma, a Jewish Sorority, held a formal dance at the Deshler (managed by an Italian) in the Spanish Room, the music being furnished by a Catholic orchestra. Colored waiters served the food among which was French pastry."

Was this a formal dance or a Model League of Nations!

line for 5 yards and a first down, on Suffield's 43-yard line. When Suffield again had the ball she was on her own 15-yard line. Washburne attempted a punt out of the danger zone, but the wind carried the ball back over the goal line where Washburne recovered it only to be tackled by Craig for a safety. The ball was placed on the 30-yard line where Suffield kicked it out of danger, only to have Trinity come marching down the field, making three first downs, and culminating their advance when Brewer carried the ball through the Suffield line for a touchdown.

The second and third quarters resolved into a kicking duel with Washburne holding the advantage due to the fact that the wind was at his back. In the last quarter Trinity got possession of the ball on their own 46-yard line when the wind carried one of Washburne's punts outside. Sill returned the punt and it was grounded on the 15-yard line by Fritzon. The next punt Washburne attempted rolled outside on the 40-yard line. Ward circled right end for 12 yards and Nelson and Brewer made 12 more on two off-tackle slants. Sill made 5 more yards through the line. Ward added three more, and in the final play of the game, Nelson made five yards on a criss-cross giving Trinity first down on the four-yard line. The whistle prevented Trinity from again scoring.

COMMUNICATIONS

This incident happened to William S. Hubbard, M. D., '88.

EDDY ELECTED TO HEAD
RIFLE CLUB ACTIVITIES

Harvard and Worcester Tech
Included in Schedule of Matches

At the opening meeting of the Trinity Rifle Club which was held last Monday, in 16 Jarvis Hall, William J. Eddy, '32, was elected president, and Edward H. Lawton, '32, secretary and treasurer. At the same time the members voted that C. E. Laubin, '31, who resigned from his position as president, retain his positions as captain and coach.

President Eddy announced a radical widening in the scope of the club's activities; that in addition to the usual meet with Harvard, the postal matches with Worcester Tech., Michigan College of Mines, and others, and the National Riflemen's Association's tryouts for awards, many new meets are planned. In addition, he urged men men to come out for tryouts, for although last year's high men—Laubin, Lawton, Mitchell, H. D. Doolittle, H. J. Doolittle, W. Hall and Anderson—are out this year, all new material available is needed.

Jitney Players Coming

Mr. Harrison Dowd who plays the part of Don Antonio will be remembered by those who saw his inimitable performance last year in "The Murder in the Red Barn" when he played the part of Tim Bobbin. The members of last year's audience may also look forward with expectation to seeing Miss Ellen Love again, she, who played the role of Anne Marten. These two artists will also be remembered for their excellent performance in the "Divertissements."

The last appearance of the Jitney Players in Hartford was in the Colonial Room of The Bushnell Memorial Hall when they presented "The Wonder; A Women Keeps a Secret." This play was written by a Mrs. Centilevre, a well-known dramatist in England, and was first acted at Drury Lane in 1714 by the great actor, Garrick. Mrs. Centilevre lived at a time when a woman's brains were held at naught, and she endeavors to uphold her sex at every available opportunity, much to the supposed disgust of masculine listeners. Garrick was so impressed with this play that he closed his histrionic career with it, in 1776.

The New Bedford Morning "Mercury" of August 18, 1927, printed the following comment on the Jitney Players' presentation of "The Duenna."

"Style—that is the predominant impression of their work. Behind this quality lies the eager mind that has been called to attention in possibly every year's review. They make their own artistic world along the road, Speech is perfectly mastered by all the troupe; one never tires of commending it. Then their propulsive, easy-gliding sentences. How they move in quickly shifted patterns; how they assume and release a mood, and adapt themselves with a sure light touch."

The presentation is in three acts; the setting is a delightful one in old Seville. The dramatis personae are as follows:

Don Ferdinand....Frederick Forman
Don Jerome.....Edmund Forde
Don Antonio.....Harrison Dowd
Don Carlos.....Douglas Rowland
Issac Mendoza.....Richard Skinner
Lopez.....Robert Spruill
Lewis.....Harvey Fite
Father Paul.....Douglas Rowland

GLEE CLUB PREPARES
FOR COMING CONCERTS

Chorus May Enter Intercollegiate Contest to Be Held in Hartford

Under the direction of Mr. A. Tillman Merritt, head of the Music Department, the activities of the Glee Club have progressed in the weekly rehearsals held on Thursday evenings in the public speaking room. With the acquisition of several new members, some of which appear often on the programs of Harvard Glee Club, the Club has been divided up into quartets which will rehearse at different times for the final tryouts which take place on November 18.

Owing to the fact that there are more men in some of the parts than in others, the personnel of the chorus will be cut down to twenty-five or thirty men after the November tryouts, thus creating a balance of parts. The contestants will be judged on a basis of proficiency in reading music, interpretation, and vocal qualities. Mr. Merritt hopes that those already interested in the club, as well as other students wishing to try out, will continue their work in view of bringing on a successful year.

The custom of singing Christmas carols in chapel will be continued by the club, and the carols will consist of the usual carols familiar to the entire student body, together with those of various nations. It has also been planned that the Glee Club enter the annual Intercollegiate Glee Club contest, in which are already enrolled the choral organizations of the leading colleges of the East, such as Williams, Wesleyan, Amherst, and others. President Ogilby and Mr. Merritt have discussed the possibility of giving a concert in Alumni Hall, some time before Christmas, and it is probable that the concert may come a few days after the final try-outs.

At the regular business meeting, which was held early in the month, Paul Holmes Twaddle, '31, of Rocky Hill, Conn., last year's president, outlined the duties of the various officers, and the annual election of officers took place. E. Willard Ljongquist, '31, of Hartford, was elected president; Nathaniel B. Abbott, '32, of Hartsdale, N. Y., vice-president; and Howard E. Schmolze '31, of Kew Gardens, L. I., business manager and librarian.

sessions are expected to be held; and it was suggested if any team felt itself aggrieved at being put out of the tournament, it could settle the grievance to its satisfaction on the court, although this would in no way affect the final outcome of the tournament.

The date of the cross country race was announced to be the first Wednesday after the football season is ended, November 12. The winner of this is to be decided as in past years. The individual winner of the race will garner five points for his fraternity, second place, three points, and third place, one point. In addition to this, each man to finish will receive one point for every man behind him. Thus if there were twenty men to start the race, the winner would receive five points plus a point for each of the nineteen men behind him, or twenty-four points; second place, twenty-one points, etc. These points go only to determine the winner of Lyman Ogilby's cup for cross country and are not counted toward the Alumni Trophy. Points awarded for the Alumni Trophy are as follows: to the fraternity winning the cross country race, fifteen points; to the fraternity getting second place, ten points; to the fraternity getting third place, five points; and to every fraternity represented by three men who finish the race, three points. No man

A confident 'varsity ran into an unexpected snag last Saturday in Philadelphia, when they became Haverford's first victim of the current season to the score of 11 to 6. It was the first time this year the Philadelphians have been able to score a point. Trinity had made the trip to the Quaker City determined to avenge the 19 to 0 defeat sustained last year in Hartford and came off the field outplayed and outscored.

The first period produced nothing in the nature of a score for either team, but Trinity had somewhat the worst of it, although the ball did not go inside either 30-yard line.

Early in the second period Logan kicked 70 yards, over Trinity's goal line. Trinity on its 20-yard line was penalized 15 yards for holding, bringing the ball to the five-yard line. Armstrong fumbled a bad pass from center behind his own goal line and on his recovery was tackled by Captain Conn of Haverford for a safety, giving Haverford two points. A few minutes later Haverford was forced back to her own 20-yard line, where Trinity took the ball on downs.

Disco's pass was intercepted by Pleasants, Haverford's freshman full-back, who raced 90 yards for a touchdown. Fields kicked the extra point. Although Trinity was outplayed during this first half, both scores were the results of unfortunate breaks.

In the third quarter Haverford made two first downs to Trinity's one, but neither team was able to make a real threat at the opposing goal.

The final period saw both teams score, but Haverford got the jump, adding two more points to make their total 11 by virtue of another safety. Captain Conn again played the leading part, when he crashed through the Trinity line to pull down Phippen behind the Trinity goal line.

It was only during the final moments of the game that Trinity was able to uncork anything resembling a real attack which led to a score.

Taking the ball from his own 25-yard line, Tom Wadlow picked his way around left end for 15 yards making it first down on the 40. On the next play Phippen went back and tossed a long forward to Lou Wadlow, Trinity left end, who outdistanced the entire Haverford team as he sprinted 50 yards for the only Trinity score. Tom Wadlow failed in his effort to convert 6 points into 7.

The game was well played, although Trinity was outclassed during the whole afternoon, making only six downs to Haverford's ten. The worst break came in the third period, when Bialick, Trinity halfback, recovered a Haverford fumble near midfield, squirmed his way through the entire Haverford team, and then stumbled with a clear field to the Philadelphia goal line ahead of him.

The Wadlow brothers, Meier, and Burgess were the outstanding players for Trinity. In a game where the opposing line was superior, Burgess at tackle turned into one of the best performers of the afternoon. Burgess played a large part of the game with a broken hand that was not discovered until afterwards and which will keep him on the sidelines for the remainder of the year.

It was the superior line play of Haverford that made the difference in the scores. The scoring of the safeties perhaps in some measure serves to illustrate the alertness of the "Main Liners" forward wall. The fight which Trinity had showed the week before at Storrs against the Connecticut Aggies was never evident for more than a few minutes at a time.

The outstanding players for Haverford were Captain Conn at end, who was responsible for both safeties, Barnhurst at guard, and Harvey at tackle, who both broke through repeatedly and stopped Trinity plays before they got under way.

Trinity started many second string players who saw a great deal of service in order to save the 'varsity for the Wesleyan game this week. Captain Durand due to injuries was unable to make the trip but will be in shape for the coming games. Durand and Bockwinkel, an end, who was put out for the season with an injured shoulder in the Connecticut Aggie game, were both missed by Trinity. Duksa, a tackle, was converted into an end to replace Bockwinkel and showed promise. He should show up to advantage in the ensuing game.

regular position at tackle, while Captain Weinstein is fairly certain of starting at left tackle. Other tackle candidates who may start are Tom Burgess, John Monacella, Ed Sayers, and Duksa.

Allen Meier is another man who is very likely to start. He will be at one of the guard positions and his running mate will be either George Mackie, Thad Jones, or Fred Geiger. At center it is hard to choose between Coles and Campion.

Lou Wadlow who scored Trinity's touchdown against Haverford is a fixture at left end. The other wing position is still open with Walt Dunbar, Doolittle, Johnny Childs, and possibly Duksa fighting for the post vacated by George Bockwinkel when he dislocated his shoulder in the Connecticut Aggie game two weeks ago.

Wesleyan's team has developed rapidly, in spite of the fact that its practice sessions have been hindered by the infantile paralysis epidemic at Middletown. Saturday everyone anticipates a hard struggle and an interesting contest as the contending teams are evenly matched. Wesleyan will be a slight favorite due to their excellent showing against Amherst.

ligious and social problems confronting the Church today. At the conclusion of the sessions of the various discussion groups, the delegates met together in one assembly presided over by the Archbishop of Canterbury, head of the Anglican Church.

Among the topics for discussion were such subjects as: "The Nature of God", "Youth and Religion", "War and Christianity", and numerous others, stressing the relationships between political, moral, social, and economic conditions of the times and their bearing upon the Church. In the discussion concerning war, Mr. Hooper said that he was impressed because of the fact that the American bishops were the first to voice strong opposition to the existing conditions of international warfare. He explained this fact stating that the English were more reluctant to give their present ideas of warfare in place of pacifism, than were Americans, because of the vastly different geographical conditions of the two nations. He was disappointed by the fact that the Conference failed to reveal or add any new aspect to the nature of God. One felt that the question had been decided once and for all time in the Anglican faith, hence there was no need, in their opinions, for any new ideas on the subject. The view held by the Humanists, that God was a remote Being who could not be determined, and whose sympathy and aid could not be received through prayer, was left undiscussed. On the contrary, however, each delegate was allowed the privilege of voicing his opinions, and Mr. Hooper emphasized this feature concerning the larger assemblies.

Under the direction of the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Conference meets in London once in ten years at the historic Lambeth Palace, built in the Tudor age by Cardinal Woolsey. The delegates are comprised of all bishops within the Anglican Church, including all the domains of the British Empire, and meet to decide and legislate upon matters chiefly concerning the Church and society. Invitations are extended also to American clergy of the Episcopal Church.

may enter the race who has not been over the course at least once in advance.

The Neutral Body may compete in all of the intra-mural sports, although it is not eligible to receive any of the awards. The Neutral Body has always presented formidable teams and last year decisively won the inter-fraternity swimming meet. This group has not as yet appointed a sports manager to meet with the inter-fraternity sports committee, and is advised by the physical education department to do so as soon as possible. The committee consists of Frederick B. Wierk, Delta Phi; Graham C. Newbury, Alpha Chi Rho; Henry O. Phippen, Jr., Alpha Delta Phi; John P. Coleman, Alpha Tau Kappa; William C. Furman, Delta Kappa Epsilon; William C. Boeger, Jr., Psi Upsilon; Joseph J. Fleming, Sigma Nu; and Richard C. Meloy, St. Anthony.

Prom Committee Chosen

Of the members chosen for the committee, many have been active in sports and extra-curriculum activities. Boeger, the chairman being a member of the baseball squad, the Political Science Club, the Sophomore Rules Committee, and the Hop Committee, last year. Campbell is a member of the Political Science Club, and the Athenaeum debating squad, while Adams has been outstanding in baseball and basketball. Chester Ullman is a member of the 1930 football squad, James C. Warwick is last year's chairman of the Sophomore Hop Committee, and Keith Funston is the present manager of baseball. John Burke is captain of tennis, and a past secretary-treasurer of the class, while Zazzaro is a member of the basketball and football squads. William Kibitz, organist and choir-master of the college, is also a member of the editorial board of "The Ivy," for the Class of 1932.
